Northwestern EducationUSA Academy

JULY 3–21, 2017

Northwestern University's EducationUSA Academy, offered in partnership with the US Department of State's EducationUSA network, is a unique three-week program for international high school students that provides intensive courses taught in English, college preparatory content, tours of diverse college and university campuses, and cross-cultural activities. Through the EducationUSA Academy, students from around the world can improve their English skills and become more familiar with the US higher education system, academic culture, campus life, and application processes for admission to US colleges and universities.

- Build your academic resume at Northwestern University, one of the top schools in the United States
- Increase your familiarity with the US higher education system
- Attend class on Northwestern's beautiful lakefront campus just north of the world-class city of Chicago
- Snap a photo at "The Bean" in Millennium Park, take an "L" train to the Art Institute, and explore Chicago
- Learn more about academic culture, campus life, and tour local colleges while learning about the US admissions application process
- Meet students from all over the world in a safe, supportive environment

EDUCATIONUSA ACADEMY STUDENTS WILL TOUR:

- University of Chicago
- Loyola University
- University of Illinois at Chicago
- DePaul University

"I think it was the perfect thing for me, to learn about how the application process works, and to have a taste of the college life."

Juliette, Belgium, 2016 EducationUSA Academy at Northwestern student

“What I like most about the program is that we get the chance to see how universities in the US are, and we can meet people from all around the world, international students, and communicate with them, exchange views and experiences.”

Eleftheria, Greece, 2016 EducationUSA Academy at Northwestern student

“My favorite thing about the program is the diversity. Diversity is good because we have different opinions and ideas and we work together as a team.
It’s really cool.”
